Pro-Conservatives Swept Into Power With Huge Majority

The Conservative party swept into power on Monday with the majority of 209 seats out of 265 in parliament. All the federal seats held by Social Credit for 22 years were lost to the Conservatives, including Battle River - Camrose riding where Cliff Smallwood made a remarkable showing right from when the first returns rolled in.

Cliff Smallwood, Conservative, raced ahead in Battle River-Camrose to score another resounding triumph for his party. He rolled up 12,762 votes, compared with 6,006 received by James A. Smith, SC and former member. In the 1957 election, Smith had a majority of 5,422. On Monday, C. Saville, Liberal, polled 2,112 votes, and Harold Rolseth, CCF, 1,316.

The Conservative victory was so overwhelming in many ridings that the former SC members apparently will lose their $200 cash deposits, to save his deposit, the candidate must poll at least half the votes received by the winner.

Weekly Inspirational Corner

(Sponsored by an Irma Times reader)

In the end of the sabbath, as it began to dawn toward the first day of the week, came Mary Magdalene and the other Mary to see the sepulchre.
And, behold, there was a great earthquake: for the angel of the Lord descended from heaven, and came and rolled back the stone from the door, and sat upon it.

His countenance was like lightning, and his raiment white as snow;
And for fear of him the keepers did shake, and became as dead men.
And the angel answered and said unto the women, Fear not ye: for I know that ye seek Jesus, which was crucified.
He is not here: for he is risen, as he said. Come, see the place where the Lord lay.

And go quickly, and tell his disciples that he is risen from the dead, and behold, he goeth before you into Galilee; there shall ye see him: lo, I have told you.

WITH THE District Agriculturist

By J. S. Duncan

Gardens and Gardening
It won't be long until we start to think about getting out in the garden and planting the first seeds. If you are going to do the work required by a garden you might as well get the best possible results. Don't try to save money by using the seed left over from last year and the year before. It is a good idea to buy new seed every year. If you want best results, don't buy the first seeds you see either, make sure the varieties you are getting are suitable for the area and for the use you will put them to. There is a bulletin "The Alberta Horticultural Guide" available at the office which gives the varieties suitable for the district and which rates vegetable and fruit as to their suitability for freezing, canning and storage. Pick up or write for a copy of this bulletin.

Watch for Heating Grain
All grain storage should be checked for signs of heating or insects. It doesn't take much moisture to start grain to heat and a lot of granaries have cracks or leaks where moisture can get in. There hasn't been many cases of Grain Beetle or Mites just lately but regular inspections of all storage should be made anyway just in case.

Farm Accident
The start of the busy season is not far away now and along with the spring rush will come a lot of accidents unless every one is careful. Tractors and machinery are dangerous, particularly if children are allowed to play or be around where machinery is working. Don't carry passengers on tractors, don't adjust or grease machinery unless it is stopped, never start a tractor or machine in the yard without looking to see if children are playing in front of it. Take it easy when travelling on a road with a tractor as a lot of tractors are tipped into ditches. Let's make this season accident free.

The Weather
Spring can't seem to get properly "sprung." Too much east wind and dull weather—nevertheless the snow melts—quite a bit every day but the mud and water is very slow drying. As the earth was just saturated last fall and we have had a lot of snow since it looks as though the "Moon of rubber boots" is going to be a long one this year.

Last Saturday it was snowing even heavier than it does on television when Verne Sampson phoned up to report a meadow lark over by the National Grain Co. elevator. Since then we have had various reports of crows, starlings, gophers, etc.

EASTERLY ECHOES
Among those attending the Spring Livestock sale in Edmonton last week were Bob Dempsey, Milt Younker and Mr. and Mrs. G. Elliott.
Mrs. S. Fenton and children were city visitors last week.
More spring signs. Frank Crab reported seeing a lone goose going in a northerly direction March 29. Crows and starlings have also been reported. Congratulations to Cliff Smallwood on being the successful candidate for Battle River-Camrose constituency on Monday.

District Family Bid Farewell

Friends and neighbors from far and near gathered at the Battle School Saturday evening, March 29, to wish George and Olivia Theroux all the best of everything as they leave our community to make their home in Irma.

The evening was spent in games, songs and contests as well as in much reminiscing amongst old friends on the forty years that the Theroux's have resided on their farm here. The games furnished all with much merriment; among others being a history of the Theroux farm as told by Mrs. M. Orzechowski and which in true "upset-the-furniture" fashion led to many a "mad scramble," as most farm homes do, at such times as proposals, weddings and pig chasings.

The young folk of the district added to the evening with their songs and instrumental—Doug as Meekins and Jimmy Lingley with solos; Faye Smith and Larry Mark with a duet; Maryanne Young, Ed and Gloria Meekins with a medley of songs; and Shirleyanne Meekins with a piano solo followed by a reading of a poem "Farewell to Neighbors" composed for the occasion by her grandmother, Mrs. Ed. Brubach.

The highlight of the evening, however, came when George and Olivia, together with their immediate family, were asked to be seated at a guest table. Mr. Tobie Smith in a few well chosen words expressed the district's gratitude for the Theroux family's years amongst us and presented them with a Lazy-Boy easy chair. They then were escorted to their new home from their wide circle of friends in token of their appreciation of such good neighbors. Mrs. Theroux very fittingly thanked those for their kind words and all present for their well wishes and thoughtful gift. She indicated regret at leaving a community of which one truly becomes a part over the years and expressed the desire to have all their good friends call on them when settled in their new home.

The evening came to a pleasant close with a delicious lunch served by the ladies of the community.

All felt regret at bidding such helpful and active community members good-bye. Mr. and Mrs. Theroux have played prominent parts in school, church and district endeavors; Mrs. Theroux over the years having taught school at Jarow and Battle, is a former School Board member, W.A. President, Sunday School Principal and Teacher, Secretary of the Jarow United Church, is an active W.I. member and always a helper when helping hands were needed to mention only a few of her district activities—while Mr. Theroux has always been a helpful neighbour, helpmate in all Mrs. Theroux's activities. Lodge brother and district handy man. Batt's loss is indeed Irma's gain.

We note with pleasure that members of the family, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Daggs and Debra are taking over the farm in April.

Out-of-the-district guests who attended included Mr. and Mrs. Ross Astley of Minburn, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tressman and family of Kinross and a host of friends from Jarow.

The Alberta Legislature In Action

by Ken Mason
EDMONTON — If there was anything surprising about the new liquor laws introduced in the Legislature, it was because they went much farther than a lot of Albertans thought they would.

A substantial number of members on both the Opposition and Social Credit side are opposed to any relaxation of the drinking laws, although they are outnumbered by the wets and the semi-wets.

But the attitude of all seems to be that they have little or no choice in view of the way the majority voted in last fall's liquor plebiscite.

On the whole, the consensus is that the government is taking a sensible approach. In the Social Credit caucus, the dries stayed out of it for the most part, relying on those who favor the new laws to arrive at the best solution.

Minister Without Portfolio Fred Colborne, Calgary, introduced the legislation and is piloting it through the House.

It provides for liquor sales in high-class dining rooms, straight cocktail lounges in conjunction with licensed dining rooms, liquor in cabarets or night clubs, and liquor on trans-continental trains. There will be no drinking on airlines.

The aim of the legislation is to make liquor secondary by tying the laws closely to food. As a concession to teetotalers, a licensed dining room will be required to provide a separate room or area where liquor is not available.

One unexpected move was the provision for the new types of liquor outlets without a mandatory local option vote.

According to the bill, a local option vote won't be necessary unless it is demanded in a petition signed by 500 voters or by 25 per cent of the voters, whichever is less.

Once licenses are granted in an area, there can't be another local option vote for five years and there must be a petition with 2,000 names.

The government decided against making local option votes mandatory because in some areas the plebiscite vote was so decidedly wet that the citizens might feel another vote is unnecessary. On the other hand, it was felt that provision for a vote should be there for those who want it.

Conceivably, there could be a vote on liquor every three years, but officials doubt if that will happen.

Here's the way the new laws will work once they come into force, in either May or June. Any operator of a high-class dining room who wants a liquor licence will apply to the liquor control board. The board will advertise its intention to consider the application.

If no petition is received within 30 days after the last advertisement, the board can grant a licence. If there is a petition, the cabinet must authorize holding a local option vote.

The first to be established will be licensed dining rooms. Then an operator who serves drinks in his dining room will be able to apply for a cocktail lounge licence. In the lounge, all types of liquor will be served with or without food, but food must be available if patrons want it.

The liquor board will have wide powers to regulate all phases of operation. It will be able to require certain standards of accommodation, types of lighting, furnishings and fixtures, quality of liquor and price of drinks.

Cabaret licenses will be restricted to establishments which already serve high-quality food, and which offer dancing and live entertainment.

Another provision aimed at keeping liquor secondary to food is a clause which says revenue from the bar must never exceed that from food service. This is to discourage huge bars in tiny restaurants.

The liquor laws were expected to be passed without any major debate, although some members will want to reaffirm their views on the subject.

They also were expected to pass with little change from the way they were drafted.

Members of the Alberta Hotel Association are reported unhappy about restaurants getting in to the liquor business, but at the moment it seems doubtful if any change will be brought about.

Unless something unforeseen happens, Alberta could become Canada's newest wet province by late this year.

The Legislature sat morning, afternoon and night last week in an all-out effort to complete some of its business before April 1, the start of the new fiscal year.

The House completed its detailed study of the budget estimates, authorizing the spending of amounts set aside in the $293,000,000 budget. Then members began plowing through the 100-old bills which are before the House.

Last week ended with Lieutenant-Governor Dr. J. J. Bowen giving Royal assent to some of the legislation which has to be in force for the start of the new fiscal year.

The news came out that maternity hospital care will no longer be free in Alberta, as of this week.

Under the province's new hospital insurance program, maternity cases are treated the same as other cases. Hospitals will charge $1.50 to $2.00 a day for the mother, and $1.00 a day for the newborn infant.

It marks the end of about 10 years of free maternity treatment. The government estimates the maternity "coinsurance" fee will net $500,000, and they money will go into providing drugs until now haven't been available under the province's $2-a-day hospital plan.

Since 1945 the productive capacity of Canada's steel industry has increased by 70 per cent.

Sedgewick Boy of 12 Dies Under Tractor

SEDGEWICK — A 12-year-old boy was smothered to death Monday when the tractor he was operating on his father's farm overturned and pinned him beneath the machine.

The boy, Karl Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Anderson, was rushed to nearby Galtland hospital for medical aid but could not be revived. The accident occurred about eight miles south of here, about 128 miles southeast of Edmonton.

It is reported that when the tractor overturned, a wheel of the machine pinned him so tightly to the ground he could not breathe. He was found by his father and rushed to hospital.

No inquest will be held.

Battle of the Budworm

The budworm epidemic, now being held in check in New Brunswick and Gaspé by aerial spraying of five million acres of woodlands, took a deadly toll of timberland before the advent of the spraying technique. Contrary to some popular beliefs, a budworm infestation does not die out of itself but continues until the forest is destroyed. Combating the budworm invaders with DDT insecticides has been a costly and laborious operation, but has enabled the New Brunswick industry to safeguard the employment of 25,000 wage-earners and to continue annual production of pulp and paper valued at 125 million dollars.

WANTS ADS DO BIG WORK

Gas Company to Expand Operations

A record expansion, costing an estimated $5,500,000, to improve and extend its pipeline system and to bring natural gas service to new areas, is planned for 1958 by Northwestern Utilities, Limited, it is announced by Murray E. Stewart, general manager.

Major item is construction of a 16-inch line from the Pembina field to Edmonton, a distance of 70 miles, at an estimated cost of $3,820,000, on which work has already begun. Northwestern will buy residue gas produced with crude oil at the Pembina field. Quantities to be purchased are estimated at 65 million cubic feet per day.

"The gathering, processing and marketing of this oilfield residue gas will achieve a measure of conservation which has not been possible to date," Mr. Stewart said. "It is made possible by the efforts of provincial conservation authorities and by the expenditure of major sums by the producers in the Pembina field."

The company plans to provide natural gas service to Provost and Cadogan, supplying these communities 160 miles southeast of Edmonton from the Provost gas field. There are about 365 customers who can be served in this area. Cost of this new installation is estimated at $310,000.

Oyen, Consort and Monitor also will be served by connection to the Alberta Gas Trunk Line system. There are approximately 445 customers in these communities 190 miles southeast of Edmonton. Cost of facilities to serve these communities will be about $210,000.

Extensions to the company's present distribution systems will cost more than $400,000 this year. More than $700,000 is provided for installations for new customers, and for measuring and pressure control equipment. Improvements to the company's production facilities, including the acquisition of natural gas rights, and various improvements to field lines and equipment.

THE Homemakers

Nylon stockings are indeed a necessity in one's wardrobe today; it is important to your looks as well as your pocketbook to understand about the different types of nylon stockings.

An important point to remember is the higher the denier and gauge, the stronger and, therefore, more durable the stocking. Denier in a stocking means the fineness of the yarn, thus a 10-denier is much finer and thinner than a 60 denier. The lower the denier number, the finer and sheerer the stocking. Stockings today range from 10-60 denier.

Gauge in a stocking states the number of stitches per inch and a half in a stocking fabric. The higher the gauge, the tighter the fabric and, therefore, the longer the wear. Nylons today range from 46-72 gauge.

Purchasing Stockings:

A 15-denier stocking 45 gauge, will not give you the same wear as a 15-denier 66 gauge, and it will be finer. For those who wear a long wearing stocking choose either 60-denier, 45 gauge, or heavy crepes. Seamless stockings are commonly described in terms of the number of needles on the stocking knitting machines—for example, 400 needle stockings—and, like gauge, the higher the needle count, the stronger the fabric.

Seamless stockings and light flesh tones should be avoided by a person with plump legs, as these emphasize their size. An illusion of added height will result if the shade of stocking blends in with the color of the outfit. The present trend is to have them the same shade as your outfit.

For comfort and appearance the stocking should be of the right length to be the right size. Measure your foot from the toe to the back of your heel; the no. of inches in length determines your correct stocking size.

Care:

Some suggestions as to care of your nylons are as follows:
a. Wash nylons after each wearing in warm soapy suds and rinse well. To hasten drying, roll in a soft towel before hanging them to dry.
b. Avoid handling nylons with ragged fingers or toe nails.
c. Roll the stocking on and off, don't pull or tug.
d. Purchasing several pairs of the same shade at one time is economical.

UNLICENSED, INFERIOR VARIETIES

Far too many farmers in Western Canada continue to grow unlicensed, inferior, unrecommended varieties of grain crops. The farmer who grows unlicensed varieties is not only doing harm to himself but, what is more important, he is helping to damage Canada's reputation for producing high quality grain.

Top Quality Essential. Before a new variety is licensed it must meet the high standard of quality required to maintain Canada's advantageous position in the grain markets of the world. It must also show some advantage in disease resistance and yield over the varieties already available. In other words, a new variety is licensed and distributed in this country only when, after thorough testing, our crop scientists have found it to be superior in one or more important characteristics to existing varieties.

Difficulties Created. A farmer who grows an unlicensed variety of poor quality is not only "his own worst enemy" but he also creates a burden others must carry. His neighbors who grow licensed, top quality varieties carry him on their backs because his poor variety gets by only because it is mixed in with their good varieties. The final effect is however a general lowering of Canada's grain quality. Besides, unlicensed varieties cause serious difficulties in the inspection and grading of grain, and markedly increase the problems of the plant breeder who is striving to produce high quality grain varieties. Farmers who grow licensed and recommended varieties are helping to guard Canada's reputation for producing high quality grain. Unlicensed varieties are definitely inferior varieties. The farmer who grows them is adding to Canada's grain marketing problems. He is working against the best interests of western farmers.

Your local Agricultural Representative can provide you with a list of the licensed varieties of grain crops officially recommended for growing in your district in 1958. Plan on planting only licensed, recommended grain varieties this year. When it comes to varieties, the "West Must Grow the Best."

In terms of constant (1949) dollars Canada's gross national product is estimated at $1,534 per capita in 1957, compared to $1,587 in 1956 and $1,474 in 1955.

EFFICIENT FEEDING AND LIVESTOCK MANAGEMENT

By Dr. Gustav Bohstedt
Emeritus Professor of Animal Husbandry
University of Wisconsin

Good Care For The Dry Cow Pays In Future Production

A modern dairy cow has the maternal or sacrificial nature so highly developed that she spends herself at all costs and practically puts herself into the milk pail. In the drying-off and the dry period she needs good feed with special attention to salt and mineral needs to restore herself, in preparation for future calving and future lactation.

Too often, however, farmers feel that the dry cow is the non-productive member of the herd and they fail to provide feed and minerals in the quality and amount required by the animal. This is not good management.

Dr. E. B. Hart, of the University of Wisconsin, estimated that during a heavy lactation, cows lose as much as 25 per cent of the calcium and phosphorus of their skeleton. They even become subject to hip and leg fractures because of these mineral losses.

During the drying-off and the dry period the cow, for the first time since calving, are in a position to restore their necessary reserve nutrients. Not merely the visible reserves that show up as good condition of flesh, but also the invisible reserves, the minerals and vitamins that are stored in the skeletons, the liver, and other organs of the body. In addition to restoring her reserves during the dry period, the cow is meeting larger and larger nutrient demands of the growing fetus.

It is vital to make sure she receives the right kind and amount of minerals. Dr. E. B. Meigs of the United States Department of Agriculture has demonstrated that an adequate supply of phosphorus during the dry period is rewarded with a better flow of milk during the following lactation. The opposite is true too—phosphorus deficiency during the dry period resulted in lowered milk production.

At the Ohio Experiment Station, Dr. E. B. Forbes showed that cows accumulate the vital calcium and phosphorus in their bodies most effectively only during the dry period and in the latter period of lactation.

Good management calls for care during the dry period. To restore the dry cow's reserves she has put into the milk, she must have decent roughage, whether hay or silage or both. If her body condition requires it, don't hesitate to feed a few pounds of suitable grain mixture. Protein level of the mixture would depend on the kind and quality of the roughage fed. When limited amounts of grain are fed a mineral supplement mixture of one part zinc mineralized salt and one or two parts of dicalcium phosphate or steamed bone meal should provide the necessary minerals.

This attention to the feed and mineral needs of the dry cow will pay off in better calves and in better production throughout lactation.
